Providing Rich Educational Experiences For All Students

With proper scaffolds, students with learning differences benefit greatly from challenging opportunities like project-based learning.

At Education Associates, we love to learn from like-minded colleagues with interests and passions aligned to our own.

According to an insightful article from Nina Parrish at Edutopia.com: 'Students with learning differences who participate in project-based work show improvements in attitude, acceptance within the group and involvement in the learning process.'

Project Discovery's hands-on Career Awareness, Career Exploration, Adapted and Job Skills Training kits were developed by professional educators with this very philosophy in mind.

Regarding learners with special needs, Ms. Parrish goes on to point out that 'experiential learning better suits their need for a multisensory, adaptable teaching method.'

At Education Associates, we couldn't agree more that 'project-based learning could be one of the keys to closing the achievement gap between students with learning differences and their peers.'
